XORD 75-2
10 DECEMBER 1974

COLD was the word for exercise "Jack Frost 75" which the 244th participated in during Jan-Feb 1975. The exercise drew units from the active duty Army, Navy and Air Force and the Reserves and National Guard and the Canadian Armed Forces. The 244th Mobile Communications Squadron was designated as the project unit from within the 252d Mobile Communications Group with the responsibility of establishing a link from Eielson AFB to Pedro Dome, Alaska, an Alaskan Communications System "White Alice" site. The 244th also supplied personnel to help with the expanded work load in the Eielson AFB Communications Center and CEMC. In addition, the 244th supplied a secure Communications Center and personnel to support the Joint Unconventional Warfare Task Force participating in the exercise at Elmendorf AFB. The capability and experience demonstrated by the 244th personnel resulted in an AAC request for their participation in the planning and engineering phases of exercise JACK FROST 76.

1. Joint Training Exercise JACK FROST 75 provided a dynamic demonstration of military readiness and ability to defend Alaska by rapid deployment of augmentation of forces from the Continental United States. This exercise achieved every one of its objectives in an extremely successful manner.

2. The achievements of this exercise were remarkable in all aspects. It required the assembling, training and deploying of the largest force employed in Alaska in a decade. It drew units from not only the active duty US Army, Navy and Air Force, but also the Reserves and National Guard, as well as the Canadian Armed Forces. It marked the first employment in Alaska of several weapons systems, and provided an extensive test of many joint procedures for both conventional and unconventional warfare operations. Further, it generated a collection of arctic lessons learned that will prove invaluable to any future force which must meet and overcome the challenge of the Arctic.

3. All personnel who participated in this exercise are to be commended. The professionalism and dedication displayed by these men and women in the outstanding performance of their duties reflect great credit on the individuals themselves and their units. Neither the demanding requirements of the exercise nor the severity of the arctic winter conditions could deter them from mission accomplishment.

4. Please extend my congratulations to your personnel and units that participated in JTX JACK FROST 75.

1. The attached letter from Lieutenant General James E. Hill, Commander in Chief, Alaskan Command, is forwarded with pride and pleasure. Outstanding performance of duty by Air National Guardsmen during exercises such as JACK FROST 75 is always refreshing to observe, and certainly reflects favorably on your command.
2. We have just reviewed the dramatic and graphic account of this joint exercise in the April issue of the National Guardsman magazine. The portrayal speaks for itself. We strongly recommend that the issue be identified to all participants.
3. Please convey our congratulations to appropriate members of the 244 Mobile Communications Squadron and assure them of the important role the Air National Guard has assumed on today's Total Force team.

THANKS
To All Of You

To - Wayne Faber and all the fine people of the Oregon Air National Guard.

Thanks to you Wayne, and all of your people, I spent one of the most memorable evenings of my Air Nat'l Guard career. The people of the State of Oregon will be placed in my debt - when I find a house!
The Distinguished Service medal was totally unexpected and a very much appreciated honor.

The best of all was the card
prepared by the "Schmitt House".
I will treasure that most of all.

Thanks again, Wayne - and pass it on to every body
Sincerely
Ray Wilson

A very special "thank you"

That's as warm as it can be

For as nice a group of people

As this world will ever see!

A special thanks to you all for the lovely evening we shared in Portland.

It meant so very much to both of us -

We'd let you know
our new address in Spokane & please be sure to come visit us when next you are there.

Thanks so very much for everything.
Lyle
